

Release Notes

New System Prompt for Missing Business/Location Info

General Overview

Currently, new accounts do not have specific details set up automatically, as it is intended for the account owners to define these values for themselves. However, if some of these values are not set up, the system does not behave as intended. (For example, if no "Email Address" is defined for the Location, receipt emails will not be sent.)

To address this issue, we are updating the system to check whenever an "Admin" user logs in to see if these values are set and if not, prompt the user to do so.

How will this benefit me?

This update will help to prevent any potential issues with functionality caused by missing Business Information and/or Location Information values.

Where will I see these changes?

This update will only affect the Office Portal.

What is being changed/added?

We are updating the system to check whenever an "Admin" user logs in to see if these values are set. If iClassPro detects that these fields are not configured, these users will see a warning message upon login that reads as follows:

The following values are not defined in your settings and may affect communications with your customers:

[List of missing values]

How does this work with existing settings?

While not adding any new settings, the system checks specific settings to see if they are properly configured. If not, the system will prompt the user to correct these issues.